1) First law of crystallography: the angle between two corresponding faces of any crystal is same.

Various crystal of same substance

2) Crystal: These substances which have sharp melting point, sharp edges and faces and reflect light and some arrangement of atoms in space to form a regular arrangement of building unit is known as crystal.

3) Viscosity in gas molecule is obtained for the transfer of momentum in adjacent layer. So, with increasing temperature the energy of the gas molecules increases. Correspondingly, the average momentum of the gas molecules increases. So greater number of molecules will transfer into adjacent layers. So, for the transportation of greater number of molecules to the adjacent layer the viscosity of gas molecule increases with temperature. It is given by this expression  $\eta \propto T^{0.5}$

SCHEDULE FOR INTERNAL ASSIGNMENT

EVALUATED ANSWER SCRIPT

Name - Avantiika Bhattacharjee
Roll no - 18CH0005
Sem - IV
Subject - Physical chemistry (CC-10)
Topic - Electric and magnetic properties of atoms and molecules

01/06

- a. Between two dipoles - dipole-dipole interaction is observed. Dipole-dipole interaction is the attractive.

b. Between two dipoles, weak electrostatic attractions is observed. These interactions operate between the nucleus and the negatively charged electrons.

c. All heteronuclear diatomic molecules are found to be polar with minimum numbers of atoms.

d. If a molecule possess a symmetric element like the centre of symmetry it will be polar like  $O_3$ .

e. As being a homonuclear diatomic molecule possess no dipole moment initially when it binds with oxygen.

f. Dielectric constant of a medium is defined as the ratio of permittivity of the medium ( $\epsilon$ ) and permittivity of space or air ( $\epsilon_0$ ). Dielectric constant is also called relative permittivity ( $\epsilon_r$ )

$$\epsilon_r = \frac{\epsilon}{\epsilon_0}$$
- a. As the electrons revolve around the nucleus it has a angular momentum and thus a magnetic moment is associated with it. That is why all the molecules tend to behave like a magnet.

As the electrons get filled up in the orbitals they get paired sometimes i.e. there the electrons have opposite spins which cancels out their magnetic moment. Thus, these molecules have null magnetic moment. But in presence of unpaired electron in an atom these magnetic moments remain thus behaving like magnets.

3

a.  $Fe_{25} - [Ar] 3d^6 4s^2$

Shows alignment of the graph

Fe exhibits ferromagnetic nature which means that the unpaired electrons are able to align themselves with other unpaired electrons in other Fe atoms. This alignment tends to persist even after the magnetic field is removed. The spin alignment of the electrons of  $Fe_{25}$  is parallel which is a property of ferromagnetic materials.

b. Paramagnetism is a form of magnetism where some materials are weakly attracted by an externally applied magnetic field and form internal, induced magnetic fields in the direction of the applied magnetic field.

Whereas diamagnetism is a form of magnetism where they have closed shell configuration thus having no net magnetic moment. Even in presence of external field the spins of the electrons are not aligned instead their spins of the orbitals are slightly altered which act in opposition to the applied field. So, they are repelled in a magnetic field.

Thus, diamagnetism is stronger than paramagnetism because of the presence of unpaired electrons in them.

So, magnetically dilute substances are those in which the paramagnetic centres are separated by diamagnetic atoms within the sample.

For eg -  $[NiCl_2] \cdot 6H_2O$  where the  $Ni(II)$  paramagnetic centres are separated by diamagnetic water molecules.

What is the meaning of Gender Role? What are the meaning of Gender analysis Matrix? 5+10=15

Ans:- Gender roles in society means how we're expected to act, speak, dress, groom, and conduct ourselves based upon our assigned sex. For example, girls and women are generally expected to dress in typically feminine ways and be polite, accommodating, and nurturing. Men are generally expected to be strong, aggressive, and bold.

Every society, ethnic group, and culture has gender role expectations, but they can be very different from group to group. They can also change in the same society over time. For example, pink used to be considered a masculine color in the U.S. while blue was considered feminine.

How do gender stereotypes affect people?

A stereotype is a widely accepted judgement or bias about a person or group - even though it's overly simplified and not always accurate. Stereotypes about gender can cause unequal and unfair treatment because of a person's gender. This is called sexism.

1. Discuss briefly the two way relationship between population growth and economic development (20)

→ Population growth and economic development share a complex and reciprocal relationship, each influencing the other in various ways. Initially, rapid population growth can strain economic resources as it demands increased infrastructure, education, and healthcare services. This may lead to short-term economic challenges hindering development.

Conversely, sustained economic development often correlates with declining birth rates and improved healthcare, contributing to slower population growth. As societies advance economically, there tends to be demographic transition, with families opting for smaller family sizes due to increased opportunities and better living standards.

1. What is Education?

- By education we mean the natural, harmonious and progressive development of man's innate powers by drawing out the best in his body, mind and spirit so as to produce an individual who is culturally refined, emotionally stable, ethically sound, mentally alert, morally upright, physically strong, socially efficient, spiritually enlightened, vocationally self-sufficient and educational liberal. This should be the end product of education. Any programme of education which puts exclusive emphasis on one of these aspects of the human personality will be considered as less-sighted or narrow. Broadly speaking, this functional and operational definition and meaning should guide us in planning and implementing our educational programmes.

Etymologically, the word 'Education' is derived from the following Latin words which are briefly explained here:

- (i) Educare - This means to raise, to nourish, to bring up.
- (ii) Educere - This implies to draw out, to lead out.
- (iii) Educere - This denotes to train.
- (iv) Educere - a meaning out of and draw meaning to lead, i.e. to lead out.

Analysis of some definitions of Education:

- Auxibolis defines education as, "helping the growing soul to lead draw, that it is itself."
- Gandhi speaks of education as, "By education, I mean an all-round drawing out of the best in the child and man - body, mind and spirit."
- Shankaracharya says, "Education is realization of the self."

Efficient Grievance Redressal Mechanism

Students dissatisfied with their performance can utilise grievance redressal mechanisms, including script review and retests. Open communication with teachers facilitates result analysis and collaborative planning. The Examination Committee, led by an Associate Professor, oversees the process, and a Help Desk offers support outside regular hours. Departmental WhatsApp groups enable direct communication with department heads to resolve issues promptly. Additionally, a grievance window on the college website allows students to address concerns with the Principal directly.

Case Study 2:

Several Political Science Honours students with paper number CC408 complained about receiving low grades on their exam. The department investigated the matter and sent a comparative list of marks to the Principal, who promptly took action. The Principal advised the students to apply for a review, and many did so. After a few days, the review results were announced, and all who applied received an increase in their marks, with some experiencing a significant improvement.

Examination-related Grievances and its Resolution

The Fourth Semester result was uploaded by the University of North Bengal on August 25, 2023. The Fourth Sem Political Science Honours students became very much distressed on seeing their marks in a particular paper (CC 408) as most of them had been awarded very poor marks in that paper in comparison to other three Political Science Papers viz. CC 409, CC 410 & SEC 401 P2. They started uploading their marksheet in the WhatsApp group.

Students' Grievances

DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE

On the basis of their grievances, the department prepared a comparative list of marks obtained by the students and that list was sent to the Principal on September 01, 2023 for his information and interaction with the Controller's Branch, NBU.

The principal was very kind enough to take up the issue with the concerned authorities immediately and informed the department that once the students apply for review following the rules, the University would look into the matter so that the students are not unduly deprived of marks. So, most of the aggrieved students applied for review of their answer scripts.

A few days later the review results were published. It has been observed that the marks of that particular paper (CC 408) have increased with respect to all the applicants, for some it's a significant increase.

A few examples may be cited:

Name of the Student	University Roll No.	Original Marks (CC-408)	Revised Marks (CC-408)	Increase by
Baby Prasad	234052351311	05	24	19
Dipak Saha	1321	21	38	17
Nikita Uroon	1324	17	31	14
Pratima Das	1312	20	32	12

Similarly, the numbers of many have been increased in the range between 05-10. Finally, the aggrieved & agitated students became satisfied with marks.

So, the department feels gratified that the grievances of most of the students could be solved very amicably with the help of the college and the NBU authorities. The timely action on behalf of the department has been able to solve a serious issue involving the students and after the resolution of the grievances, they could invest more energy and time to complete their rest of the courses.

The department conveys its gratitude to all to put the students interest top of the agenda and take the necessary steps promptly.
